Final Project Conclusion

I used Django to implement this project. It was my first experience with the framework. It nice to know that I could learn a new framework in a few days. I have had plenty of experience with other programing languages such as php and JavaScript. Thats why I went with Django. It was a pain to get it started and configured on my virtualbox. But once it got started it was very easy to work with. Django created all the database for me. The framework made it very easy to implement databases without worrying about relation details. Had I had more time I would have implemented some widgets for the forms to make them look nicer. Otherwise, I am pretty happy with the final product.
